Comments:

Graded Agency:

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) supports its mission and operations through Federal acquisitions with small businesses and is committed to achieving its small business goals. The agency's Small Business Program has implemented an active compliance, technical assistance, and outreach program designed to maximize prime and subcontract opportunities for small businesses. The NRC Small Business Program collaborates with the agency's acquisition division and contracting officer representatives on acquisition planning and market research efforts designed to explore the small business marketplace and match company capabilities with agency requirements.

As a result, the agency improved upon last year's performance by increasing the engagement between the Small Business Program, acquisition staff, regional buyers, and the small business marketplace, which served to expand the agency's program in both depth and breath. This led the NRC to award the largest amount and percentage to date to service-disabled veterans, quadruple the goal for small disadvantaged businesses, and nearly double the goal for women-owned small businesses. The agency also increased the actual number of HUBZones, small disadvantaged businesses, and service-disabled veteran-owned small businesses supporting agency operations in fiscal year 2017.
